Textbooks

Pupils and parents are requested to refrain from purchasing second-hand textbooks from anywhere until the textbooks are approved by the principal of the elementary school or of the high school. Pupils entering from other schools for the first time will secure transcripts of letters and report cards from their previous schools.

Minimum Age

The School Laws of Mississippi now provides a minimum school age of six years. We are making the same concession as of last year and will enter pupils who are six years old on or before the 1st day of November. No pupil will be received whose sixth birthday appears after the first of November.

To The Parents

The public school period of your child's life is the most eventful and most critical period through which he passes. Consequently, we urge that you be always interested in your child's school record and program. If your child's school work appears unsatisfactory, come and interview the teacher and determine the cause. Become acquainted with the teacher of your child and bring about a mutual understanding. Adverse criticism is nearly always the result of misunderstanding. Our school is wide open, not only to pupils but to parents and you are welcome at any time to observe the activities of the class rooms as well as outdoor activities. The people of Grenada have been very fine in their attitude towards the school, and we appreciate it, and solicit its hearty continuance.

Very sincerely yours,
John Rundle, Supt.,
Grenada City Schools.

Jeff Fatherree Returns to Grenada Buys Drug Store

Assumes Former Trade Name Of Fatherree Drug Company

Jeff Fatherree resumed business in Grenada on Tuesday of this week after an absence of about fourteen years. He bought the interest of Penn-Duke Drug Company and will continue the business in the present location under the trade name Fatherree Drug Company, under which he operated before moving from Grenada.

Mr. Fatherree is well known to citizens of Grenada and Grenada county and his friends are many. It has been said that he could wait on more customers in a courteous manner than three clerks of the average run could in the same length of time.

Mr. Fatherree advised The Sentinel that he expects his first shipment of new merchandise to arrive today and when his stock is complete, which will be in a few days, he would be prepared to serve the public in the same manner as when he was in business here before.

The Sentinel is glad to have Mr. Fatherree back, he is the same Fatherree as before, and feels that Grenada can boast of one more "leading business man."

Duck Hill Band Wins In Class C At Melon Carnival

Scott Calloway, of Grenada, Is Director of This Splendid Band

The Duck Hill Band under the splendid direction of Scott Calloway, of Grenada, won first place in Class C at the Watermelon Carnival in Water Valley last Thursday. The prize of $75.00 was awarded them.

The popularity of this band was in evidence when the immense crowd begun to cheer as they begun to march, each stepping with perfect rhythm from the largest of the high school pupils to the smallest of the elementary grades.

Not only does Mr. Calloway deserve much credit for his faithful work in the two years since he organized this band, but each student deserves their part of credit and last but very important in helping to win the honors at Water Valley was the very charming little mascot, Lillian Aldridge, four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Aldridge, and granddaughter of Dr. G. Y. Gillespie.

The Duck Hill Band expects to participate in the contest during the Attala County Fair October 5, at Kosciusko. The Kosciusko Band will be host to the visiting band, that will be composed of about 700 members.

When the Grenada Band came by the reviewing stand it received wild applause and was cheered all along the line of march.

Grenada County Schools To Open September 5, 1938

Colored Schools Of The County Will Open October 24th

The summer vacation is nearly over and school days are just ahead. Monday, September 5, has been set as the date for opening the white schools. The schools cooperating with Grenada will open with the Grenada City Schools. The colored schools will open October 24. It is necessary that parents begin making preparations for the children to enter the first day. The trustees should see that the school house is properly cleaned and repaired and that the grounds are mowed and cleaned of rubbish before the opening. Children can do much better work under inviting surroundings. The time spent in making pleasant the physical environment of the school is worthwhile and should not be neglected.

On August 20, the county school board will make close inspection of all school buses to see that they are properly repaired and made safe for transportating the children. In the past the county has been fortunate in having very few accidents. Extreme care has been exercised in trying to choose competent drivers. As a whole, our drivers are as competent and dependable a group as can be found, I think. Sincere cooperation of the drivers, parents, and the public generally, is solicited in making safe the transportation of the more than one thousand school children daily. We should lock hands in the effort to prevent the occurrence of even one accident during the session.

The trustees of the county have selected a competent corps of teachers, many of which have been in the schools for several years. The following is the list of teachers according to the schools:

Holcomb—A. Y. McBride, Supt., Mrs. Bernice Curry, Elementary, Elizabeth Perkins, Elementary, Mrs. J. S. Price, Voc. Home Ec., Mrs. Sally Workman, Primary, Mrs. Hattie Singleton, Elementary, Mrs. H. K. McMahon, Elementary, Helen McKinnon, High School, Robbie Sam Clanton, Elementary, Elizabeth Walker, Elementary, G. O. Sanford, Vocational Agriculture, Wealtha Suydam, High School.

Dr. Cottrell Urges Protection For Young Mississippi Mothers

Protection for approximately 200 young Mississippi mothers who die needlessly in childbirth each year is urged by Dr. H. B. Cottrell, supervisor of field unit, State Board of Health.

Deaths from diseases of pregnancy, childbirth and the puerperal state totaled 358 during 1936, Doctor Cottrell states, and more than half of these deaths were preventable.

"The childbearing woman, particularly the woman who is already the mother of a growing family, is the most important social and economic unit in any community," Doctor Cottrell continues. "It is important that she must not only survive and avoid the dangers of childbirth but that she survive with the best possible health and that she give birth to a healthy, vigorous child. Nothing is simpler than the procedures necessary for proper prenatal care. The expectant mother should from the very first be under the care of her physician, making regular visits which should become more frequent as delivery approaches. He will give her advice as to food, exercise, clothing, work and play. He will ask her to avoid certain kinds of food, prolonged exercise, and excitement. She will report any signs of experiences that might affect on her health. It is only by these repeat-

Moseley Lauds National Guard Units Of South

High Praise Given For Performance During Maneuvers in South Mississippi

Third Army Headquarters, De Soto National Forest, Miss., Aug. 6—Major-General Van Horn Moseley, Commander of the Third Army, said today the past dozen years have marked a "vast improvement" in Southern National Guard units.

General Moseley said that in the early '20's many of the Southern fighting units were rather weak and received only scant support from their states.

Although federal appropriations for Southern units now average about $10 for each put up by the states, the National Guard has shown great improvement, he said.

Moseley particularly praised the 114th (Mississippi) Field Artillery, commanded by Colonel A. G. Paxton of Greenville, Miss., and the 116th (Florida) Field Artillery, commanded by Colonel Homer W. Hesterly of Tampa.

These units, he said, compare favorably with any in the country. (Copy from Times-Picayune of August 7, 1938).

E. F. GIBBS SAYS "FAREWELL" TO "OLD GRENADA" OF 1878

Editor Sentinel:

I want to ask through you to bid the final farewell to my old home-town, to which my grandfather imigrated in 1836, with his father, when my own father, Julius G. Gibbs was only nine years old.

This is perhaps an unusual procedure, but it may perhaps touch a cord somewhere; and do some good, if some one will consent to profit by the experience of another, which is seldom the case. But the main thing I have to say was not original with me, but it was an admonition that came to our school and it may be recalled by some other school boy besides myself. It should go on to every boy, everywhere. It came from our old teacher, Mr. Samuel Cooke. He said, "Just remember boys that the world will take you at the price you put upon YOURSELF."

There is hope and inspiration in this message to which I will add, there is but one friend whose indorsement you MUST HAVE; and he is the man you meet in the mirror. But I want to say "Farewell," to the old Grenada, as I first knew it, that is if any remain who can go with me back to the time when the wooden leg met the empty sleeve, and the crutch under a shade tree in front of some Grenada store, and something like this began. "Step out thar agin stranger, it peers to me that I have seen that step before." "What is your name anyway?" "Crowder", "Joe Crowder?" "No, John." "Joe was my brother". "What of Joe?' "He fell at Cold-harber." "How did that happen?" "Well we had marched all night and attacked the enemy at day-light, and drove them back until about nine o'clock when their reinforcements came up on our flank, and Joe fell under their first volley, shot through the stomach." "Stranger it made me feel powerful bad, when I saw Joe fall. He said to me, "John, they have got me." Give my love to Mother and Father and to Julia.

I received only minor injuries and stayed in line to the end, I would have been thar yit, but old Bob said it weren't no use.

Such was the trend of conversation on the streets of Grenada when I first knew it, intimately. But born in 1859, I remember my father before he went into the army, but do not remember his going. I remember the battle of Dalton, Ga., and the burning of Grenada by the Yankees and the bombardment of Greenwood, whose guns were heard at Grenada.

My deepest love goes back to the memory of my old school-mates, most of whom fell under the scurge of Yellow Fever in 1878. There were Joe and Ed Gray and Cullin too, W. B. Barnes, W. D. Bean, John and Talbert Thomas and Adrian. Walter Eskridge, Bernard Carragin and John Huffington the laughing boy, and his two sisters, Misses Nettie and Sallie. The latter left with me the most beautiful picture I have ever seen. It was her reading of a poem which began thus:

"Into a tent of white washed walls,
Where the dead and dying lay.
Wounded by bayonets, shells and balls,
Somebody's darling was borne one

DOWN THE ROAD

By Charles M. Upham, Engineer-Director American Road Builders' Association, Washington, D. C.

Roads And Religion

Woman's three major interests, according to an old German proverb, are her children, her kitchen and her church. While modern civilization has considerably widened her horizons, these interests still remain supreme in the life of the typical American woman. Especially is this true of the small towns and rural communities where both men and women find their chief social and cultural life closely interwoven with their church.

The church gatherings in many areas form the top spot in the entertainment program for the entire year. The weekly meeting of the missionary society provides an ideal apportunity for the ladies of the community to get together for a needle-and-talk session. Chicken dinners in the church basement during the winter and ice cream socials and such on the church lawn during the summer bring the members of the congregation together at intervals throughout the year. Within the church are formed numerous clubs of men, women and children with study or recreation as their chief aim.

It is, of course, on Sunday that the church assumes its greatest importance. Sunday school for the children and morning and evening services for the adults play their part in keeipng up a high standard for the moral and spiritual life of the community.

Because of the important part played by the church in rural American life, the fact that many of our citizens are unable to attend church because of bad roads becomes especially serious. Sixty per cent of the 32,000,000 farm people in the United States live on unimproved dirt roads which bad weather often makes completely impassable. This means that more than 16,000,000 Americans are unable to get to church during many months of the year.

What can be accomplished by a church congregation with the aid of good roads is effectively demonstrated by the activities of the Hollandale Baptist Church. Until recently, the rural life in that section in the heart of the Mississippi Delta had been the old southern plantation system with negroes farming the land and making up the bulk of the population. Within the past few years, however, a large number of white people have moved there to buy and develop the land reclaimed by the government drainage program. Since there were no churches for white people in the rural districts of that section, there was soon established a mission, a branch of the Hollandale Baptist Church, in a community 12 miles east of Hollandale. The mission church has since become a thriving organization with approximately half of the congregation dependent on buses for transportation to Sunday school and church. These buses, which are the same type as those used in carrying farm children to and from school, also serve to bring the congregation from the rural districts south, east and west of the town to the Hollandale Baptist Church.

"Good roads have been one of the greatest factors in the success of this work," writes Rev. E. L. Douglas, pastor of the Hollandale church. "Washington county, in which Hollandale is located, has a splendid road system. The main highways are paved, while the secondary roads are either graveled or rock surfaced. Without this system of good roads it would be impossible for us to do what we are doing, since the nature of this delta soil is such that it is practically impossible to drive a heavily loaded bus over the native dirt roads when wet."

WASHINGTON PARADE

By Ray Walter JOHNSON and PIERCE

Washington, D. C.—No higher tribute to Senator LaFollette's investigating ability could have been given than that which came from a reluctant Republic steel policeman during the senate civil liberties committee's current hearings:

"I know, Senator, that all you want is the facts, and that's what I'm giving you."

The Wisconsin Senator is running the show alone while the other committee member, Senator Thomas (D. Utah) is at home campaigning. Old Bob's son is also setting a record by remaining here through the hottest part of the summer, instead of vacationing in his own cool state.

Incidentally, the hearings are providing Washington with the best show of the summer.

Organized doctors of Washington never did like the idea of patients organizing. The good M. D"s were on the offensive until Mr. Justice Bailey, in District Supreme Court, ruled that the group health association was a legitimate organization. Now the doctors are on the defensive and facing charges of monopoly by the anti-trust division of the Justice Department.

It is true that doctors render free services to the poor in hospitals and often take only what they can get from those who pay. However, it is hard to understand why a group of men, who, day in and day out prove their altruism to the community, would threaten from membership in their organization men who join a cooperation association which renders medical services to low salaried individuals at little cost.

We do not know enough about the anti-monopoly law to say whether the government can make out a case against the organization doctors or not, but we do believe that such ideas as the group health association must prevail.

You ought to know "Old Sam."

"Old Sam" is a horse employed by the District of Columbia to pull a lawn mower in a Washington park. And "Old Sam" is no man's fool. When the temperature reached 90 degrees one day last week and the humidity got to be awful (as it will do in this fair city) "Old Sam" called it a day and taking his lawn mower with him took a nose dive into the Potomac. Police were still trying to get him out two hours after, and finally succeeded but not without several "kicks" on the part of "Old Sam."

We seem to think that "Old Sam" is just about the smartest individual in the district. As a matter of fact the only thing we hold against "Old Sam" is the fact that he took his lawn mower along. He should have taken along several members of the New Deal "Purge Committee", instead thereby preventing a perfectly good lawn mower from getting wet, and President Roosevelt a great favor by ridding him of that gang.

GRENADA, MISSISSIPPI

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE FOURTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT:

As the Primary election draws near I wish to assure you that I have always been grateful to you for the confidence you have so kindly reposed in me. When I first asked you to make me your Representative in Congress, I stood on a platform of which the chief plank was SERVICE. I feel that I have lived up to my pledge. It has been my pleasure at all times to render you sympathetic and faithful service—so much so, as is known to every citizen, that when I announced myself a candidate for re-election I told you that I was willing and eager to stand upon that record of performance which in a few short, swift years I have been able to achieve in your behalf.

I hope that each and every one of you will make every possible effort to go to the polls and vote on next Tuesday, and I respectfully ask you to clearly keep in mind the following facts relative to a few of the things I have done as your Congressman:

It cannot be questioned that it was I who offered the amendment and put up the fight in behalf of $15 a month old-age-pensions, to be paid direct by the Federal Government, regardless of whether the State would or could put up a dime. I have always advocated beginning old age pensions at sixty years of age.

It cannot be questioned that Congress labored for weeks and months on legislation in behalf of the farmer, and I did my share of that work. I kept my promise, and voted for the very best farm bill that could be obtained. I particularly supported the provision whereby the farmer would himself have the final say as to whether or not he would accept the program.

No one could possibly hope to dispute that I am the only Congressman who offered an amendment which would have absolutely guaranteed that the small farmer would get the same deal as the Delta farmer. The House first agreed to the Amendment, but later changed its position—and I think my friends know who was responsible for that change. The man who thinks that he can mislead the farmer is himself badly mistaken.

I have been 100% faithful to the trust of the Spanish-American and World War Veterans.

I feel that no Congressman from any District has put out any more hard work than I have in behalf of many worthwhile W. P. A. and P. W. A. projects. Also, I want to remind you of the headway we are making with the Natchez Trace and with the drainage of the Big Black River, also that I am exerting every effort for the Yalobusha. Nor do I feel that the people will forget the splendid Federal Post Office Buildings I have been able to obtain for Pontotoc, Okolona, Houston, and Eupora.

The Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Mississippi Educational Association will tell every teacher and school child that I have unhesitatingly and unceasingly carried the banner of Federal Aid for Education. Millions of dollars have come to the State since I entered Congress.

On every vote that I was called upon to cast in the House of Representatives I looked only to the best interest of my people and the Record will show that no other consideration could move me. I believe that I represent a people who want me to vote my honest convictions, regardless of the pressure applied to me.

When you are at the polls, casting your votes on August 23rd, I shall be engaged in the duties of representing you in a very important peace conference, attended by all nations of the world. I shall be one of those representing you and the American people at the 34th meeting of the Interparliamentary Union. You saw the news of this appointment sometime ago, and the overwhelming majority of my friends have instructed me to take advantage of this, a great opportunity for service. I believe that you prefer peace instead of war, and it is my intention to do everything in my power to promote peace and harmony for our Country.

I shall return to the District just as soon as I can, and during my absence, my office will be kept open for every possible service to you. My Secretary is a resident of my district. He has been with me since my first election to Congress, and is thoroughly familiar with the services my office can perform. I expect you to write me at any time during my absence.

Thanking you for your friendship and appreciated support, I am

Your friend,
A. L. FORD.

After outstanding service in county agent work, Mr. Hurst was promoted to district club agent in which position he served until named extension editor in 1930.

THIS SUMMER IS THE SUMMER TO GO PLACES — IN MISSISSIPPI

Mr. and Mrs. Mississippi may pick many new playgrounds in a land of singing beauty this year as they pack up their troubles and fly from summer vexations.

Alice in Wonderland never experienced more delightful surprises than are offered in Mississippi's new diversified vacation lands of forests, streams, springs and surf beaches.

This is indeed the summer for Mississippians to go places—in Mississippi.

Forty million dollars worth of new paved highways lead to play centers never dreamed of a few years ago—to varied recreational paradises in all parts of the state, scattered conveniently over 20,000,000 acres of woodland, watercourse, and rich profusions of scenic growth and wild life.

Recreation is something the average Mississippian takes for granted. His always has been a land of lively, pulsating beauty, where life has flowed as smoothly and evenly as the whispering woodlands and murmuring streams that have enriched the days of all classes.

But this year people of ordinary means are offered new opportunities for holiday fun that formerly were not available inside the state to either rich or poor.

Two and a half million acres of national forest lands set aside by the Federal Government—another 120,000 acres developed by the Farm Security Administration for forestry, game and recreational purposes—a giant lake already filling behind Pickwick Dam on the Tennessee River and another soon to spread behind the Sardis Dam now under construction—a greatly improved National Military Park at Vicksburg—a $5,000,000 State Park development which finds nine parks embracing a total of nearly 9,000 acres of land and water located at strategic points throughout the State—38 game and 288 bird sanctuaries covering an area totalling 250,000 acres—no less than 57 large artificial lakes constructed by the WPA—new swimming pools and sand beaches—new small craft harbors and marinas—new hotels, tourist camps, and wayside refreshment inns—these are but a part of the vast recreational development which, unknown to many Mississippians, has been made ready for this summer's vacationers.

Six of the 17 contemplated recreational centers in the national forests already are in use at Gulfport, Hattiesburg, Meadville, Newton, Laurel and Brooklyn.

Two large tracts of land in northeast Mississippi have been developed into recreation centers by the Farm Security Administration. The larger of the areas, 89,000 acres in extent, stretches through parts of Oktibbeha, Choctaw, Winston and Noxubee Counties. Three lakes with picnic areas and cabins already have been constructed.

Much publicity has been given the scenic beauty being created in the Natchez Trace Parkway. A 28,000-acre tract has been cultivated on that route in Pontotoc and Chickasaw Counties, creating a profusion of flowers and forests stocked with game. A large, well-stocked lake and public camp and picnic grounds center the area.

Another old favorite point of interest has been given a face-lifting treatment that is sure to add to past lures. There has been much terracing and sodding on the 1,320 acres of the Vicksburg National Military Park. Recently the park established the first museum of its type east of the Mississippi River. Guided tours of the battlefield are conducted daily.

Under the heading of new delights come the state parks. Modeled after the national park plan, they lean more to recreational and natural scenic attractions than does the average state park. Typical facilities include a lake, beach, bathhouse and boathouse, overnight cabins, central lodge, roadways and nature trails.

Last summer there were 42,000 visitors at the only two state parks then open—LeRoy Percy Park at Hollandale and Legion at Louisville. Five others open this summer are: Tombigbee, near Tupelo; Clarkco, near Quitman; Tishomingo, near Tishomingo; Holmes County, near Durant; Roosevelt, near Morton; Spring Lake, near Holly Springs; and Percy Quin, near McComb.

Three of the parks are particularly noteworthy. Tishomingo for rugged natural scenery, Percy Quin for its 548-acre artificial lake with an eight-mile-long shoreline, and LeRoy Percy for a flowing well with a temperature of 97.4 degrees, eight degrees warmer than Warm Springs, Georgia.

A movement is under way to make the LeRoy Percy Park into a health resort. The flow of the well is 150 gallons a minute through a two-inch opening which could be expanded to 800 gallons a minute with a six-inch opening.

Approximately 100,000,000 game fish will be rescued from stagnant ponds and borrow pits this summer by the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission.

Predatory and non-game fish by the hundreds of tons are being removed from the state's lakes. 250,000 pounds of gar fish being taken from one delta lake alone in 1937. "Gar rodeos" this summer are helping to remove predatory fish.

A closed season on fresh water fish during March and April spawning periods helped conserve the fish stock. Since June the Commission has issued weekly fishing news to state sportsmen, telling where fishing is good.

Meanwhile, the Mississippi Gulf Coast is more than holding its own as a happy hunting ground for the weary and heavy hearted. Many new modern tourist camps and rental cottages have sprung up around the $5,000,000 worth of beautiful resort hotels on Mississippi's Gulf beach.

On top of the $20,000,000 development program of the prosperous 1924-28 days, there have been created several miles more of sand beaches at Biloxi, Long Beach and other coast communities. New small-craft harbors have been built at Pass Christian and Gulfport.

Facilities for the growing popularity of deep sea fishing in the passes and around outlying islands have been expanded. New clubs and restaurants specializing in sea foods, have opened. Improvements have been made at the American Legion resort on Ship Island. A new federal fish hatchery has been established.

At Starks Bayou, near Ocean Springs, work is underway on a $250,000, 200-acre park, the only state park to front on the gulf.

The seven golf courses in the three coast counties and the 23 public tennis courts are popular attractions. The four-million-dollar longest seawall of its type in the world protects a beach road which is ultimately to be converted into a four-lane drive and landscaped parkway bordering the Gulf. The Coast's 21 separate streams and more than 1,300 miles of fresh water fishing channels are always popular.

Long distance sailing races from New Orleans to Gulfport and from Gulfport to St. Andrews Bay, Florida, nave already highlighted the Coast's racing season. The Lipton Cup series and the annual Governor's Yacht race at Biloxi in September will bring the season to a climax.

This is the third of a series of semi-monthly presentations of the Mississippi Advertising Commission. The fourth will feature Mississippi seafoods.

Its hull silhouetted against the sinking sun, its sails spread before an evening breeze, the yawl at left is en route to its home port of Biloxi after a day in the surf at Ship Island. At right is part of the fleet that makes the new $400,000 Gulfport marina a beehive of activity during summer months. Center photo could be taken, many times a day, at any of the state's numerous outdoor pools.

Parks-Sharp

Miss Mary Ida Sharp and Mr. Eldridge Parks, on Wednesday morning, August 17, were married in a simple, but impressive ceremony that was said by the Rev. C. A. Parks in the home of the bride.

Loving hands had made the living room of the old Sharp home a truly exquisite picture. The large bay window formed an ideal background for the banked ferns, in front of which stood floor baskets filled with graceful Picardy gladioli. The windows were festooned with ivy and the tall mantel massed in dainty clematis.

Just at ten o'clock, Mrs. Scott Black, accompanied by Mrs. J. Sidney Sharp, sang The Sweetest Story Ever Told and Because.

Now to the triumphant strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. Sharp, the bridal party entered from the dining room. First came the two brothers of the bride, acting as her ushers, Donald and Robert Sharp, Jr. Then her sister and maid of honor, Bessie Phelan Sharp. Now a dainty figure came on the scene, adorable little Donna Jean Sharp, niece of the bride, as ring bearer.

The music softer grew and Mary Ida came on the arm of her father and met Eldridge with his brother, Dennis, as best man, before the improvised altar, where stood the Rev. C. A. Parks, who said the words that made them one.

After the ceremony the young couple left by auto for New Orleans and the Gulf Coast.

Quite a surprise met the bride and groom as they came out of the front door. The guest list for the wedding had included only members of the two families, but the girlhood friends and business associates of Mary Ida had to be present and see her off, so they had all gathered in the front yard and through their laughing rice-laden ranks the newly-weds made their get-a-way.

After they left, the guests were served punch and cake in the dining room from a beautifully arranged lace-draped table, here also were displayed the many wedding gifts, if the number and quality of these are any indication, this young couple is truly a popular one.

The bride was dressed in a tailored white lace with small hat and accessories all in white and carried a bouquet of white astors and valley lilies. The maid of honor was in a blue and white sheer with deep cape lined in white, she carried talisman roses. The groom and men of the party wore white linen suits with blue ties and handkerchiefs and had white asters in their coat lapels. The bride's mother wore an attractive printed white silk, Mrs. J. Sidney Sharp wore pink lace and Mrs. Scott Black, pink crepe, all had shoulder corsages of roses and asters. Little Donna Jean wore a drop-shoulder dress of white net with pink flowers.

After their return, the bride and groom will live in an apartment in the home of Mrs. Drew Roane.

Mrs. Parks is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sharp, her grandfather was a beloved physician of Grenada and she has spent her young life here, having received her education in the pulbic school and Grenada College.

Mr. Parks is the son of Mrs. Estella Parks, of Grenada, he went to Mississippi State College and is now a valued employee of the C. E. Lockett Lumber Company.

The out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Mrs. Herron Rowland, Mrs. Scott Black, Mrs. Harry Bratton, Miss Rose Howard Rowland and Herron Rowland, of Oxford; Mrs. Mary Payne Harvey, Miss Margaret Louise Harvey and Wendel Harvey, of Tupelo; Mrs. Jessie Wardlaw Ware, of Grinnell, Iowa and Miss Mary Emma Howze of Texarkana, Arkansas.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Taylor had as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Head, Miss Mary Kate Head, and Miss Virginia Collins, of Oxford.

Mrs. Jordan Entertains At Luncheon

Mrs. J. W. Jordan entertained at Luncheon Monday in her home near Elliott, complimenting Miss Mary Ida Sharp, Miss Adelaide Horton and Mrs. Richard Gilliam. The dinner table with its lovely center piece of flowers, on either end of which had been placed a large wedding bell, the two brides ,Misses Sharp and Horton, on being told to look under them, found gifts of lovely cocktail glasses. To Mrs. Gilliam was given a daity Silhouette. After the luncheon, a contest was held in which Miss Bessie Phelan Sharp was winner. She was presented a dainty handkerchief.

Mrs. Sharp Hostess At Rehearsal Party

Climaxing the numerous lovely affairs, that have been given for Miss Mary Ida Sharp, was the rehearsal party on Tuesday evening, August 16. Mrs. J. Sidney Sharp, assisted by her daughter, Miss Lucy Webb Sharp, was hostess at a very charming al fresco entertainment.

Flood lights shed a glow over the attractive garden of the Sharp home. On the lawn, stood a lace covered table with tall cathedral tapers in silver candelabra, softening the light on an exquisite bride's cake, which formed the centerpiece, surrounded by gracefully arranged arbelia and maiden hair fern.

After the guests had assembled, the hostess presented the honoree with a daintily wrapped package. The bride-to-be removed the wrappings and found there-in a rolling pin with a charming original poem, giving good advice.

Streamers of white satin ribbon were attached to the cake and as it was cut, each couple drew from it a souvenir and a fortune.

Precious little Donna Jean Sharp now passed the napkins and the guests enjoyed delicious ice cream with the cake.

The following guests enjoyed the delightful affair with the happy couple:

Beautiful Floats to Enter Los Angeles Parade Sept. 22nd

Caravan to Carry Mississippians Through Many States

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 17—Beautiful floats, girls and music will characterize the Mississippi division in the national American Legion parade in Los Angeles September 22.

Wilkes Davis, commander of the Mississippi department of the Legion, has announced that Annie Laurie Bishop, attractive Tupelo drum major, will head the first band of the national parade for the second consecutive year. At the New York parade last year her beauty and drum-majoring ability were the subject of national comment.

Leading the second band in the great procession will be Bobbie Vaughn, vivacious blonde beauty from Magnolia, who is national high school champion drum major.

Rounding out the list of Mississippi beauties who will apriticipate in the national parade is Miss Elaine Russell, of Vicksburg, national "Miss American Legion," who as official represenative of Governor Hugh White will convey greetings of the state executive to governors of states included on the caravan itinerary. She will head the parade in Los Angeles, thereby becoming the only individual ever to have had that honor on two occasions.

Miss Russell will ride atop a huge float as "queen of peace." The peace float, one of the five in the state Legion caravan, is rapidly nearing completion. C. B. Kennedy, contractor in charge of float construction, has announced that the entire flotilla will be ready in ample time to leave Jackson on August 21, scheduled departure date.

The caravan's itinerary will carry the Mississippians through the states of Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada, and California on the trip to the Coast.

On the return trip the route leads through Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana and back into Mississippi.

Included among large cties at which stops will be made are Memphis, St. Louis, Chicago, Des Moines, Omaha, Denver, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City, Reno, Sacramento, San Francisco, Los Angeles ,Phoeniv, El Paso, Dallas, Fort Worth and Shreveport.

Damaged Lives is a picture that will provoke serious thinking and make many of our young people realize the seriousness of damaged bodies who now do not know the dangers about them.
John Rundle,
Supt. of City Schools.

I witnessed the private screening of Damaged Lives and in my opinion everybody in the community should see it.
Rev. Wiley.

As a censor of "Social Diseases", I saw nothing at all objectionable in the picture. It presents a true exposition of facts and conditions as they exist today. In my opinion, the greatest contributing and perpetuating factor in the prevalence of social diseases is that of ignorance, and I know of no better or more effective way of presenting this subject to the masses than by way of the screen.
J. S. Sharp, M. D.

I think Damaged Lives is a picture that is very educational and will be helpful to all young people who see it.

RADIO STATION WGRM PERFORMING A SERVICE

It is with pleasure that we take this opportunity of commending Radio Station WGRM on the program, "Grenada On Parade". Some of the facts brought out on this program will be of intrinsic value to the listening audience of North Mississippi as the program deals elaborately with Grenada's founding and its historical history which has been compiled by W. E. Boushe, Tax Assessor. Public speakers appear on this program each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from three to four p. m. and bring out many salient facts pertaining to Grenada's growth and industrial development through the past generation.

We commend WGRM for its outstanding service to North Mississippi. We believe Grenada to be the smallest metropolis in the United States with a radio station rendering a service such as WGRM is doing for its constituents.

We consider The Sentinel's affiliation with WGRM something of which to be proud and something that will mean much to us and our advertisers.

ARE YOU A LAMB?

The argument that government-owned business and privately-owned business can exist together in harmony may sound well—but in this practical world, it won't stand analysis, when highly taxed private business is forced to feed tax-exempt government business.

Every time government goes into one business it means that tomorrow government will go into another business. The capacity of politicians is notorious. Give them an inch and they take a mile, until private property is eliminated.

In story, the lion and the lamb should lie side by side. In practice, the lion eats the lamb. And that's exactly what government business does to private business. We can have a socialistic nation, or we can have a nation based on free enterprise. We can't have both.

SEEING AMERICA

There has been a whole lot in the papers in years gone by about "seeing America first"—but that referred to travel.

There is a significant trend shown by a study just completed by the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. An official statement says that there has been a steadily rising income among farmers, and Uncle Sam figures it out that the crop prospects for 1938 will guarantee that part of America ouside the metropolitan area an exceptionally high degree of prosperity.

Many large advertisers of the United States, led by the automobiles, electrical supplies, radios, wearing apparel, tobaccos, mail-order houses, oils, foods, building materials, furniture, etc., are preparing to increase their advertising appropriations this fall. Local newspapers are included in the planning.

This indicates that big business is seeing the biggest part of America, at last—because it's sound sense to spend dollars and cents that way for advertising.

OUR PRICELESS HERITAGE

All too often in this busy world the few really important things are neglected.

To us in America our most priceless possession is taken for granted. It is, as everyone knows when he pauses to think, the right to freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of individual action.

But it has ever been that distant pastures seem the greenest. And for the same reason there are always those among us who forget that the greatest privilege in the world today is to be an American citizen. They overlook that other people would pay money for this privilege which they received at brith.

And, having overlooked all this some people think that the government in other lands is better than our government. To them our institutions are outmoded. They are constantly proposing some change.

But perhaps the best answer ever given to one of these Ism Groups was given straight from the shoulder the other day from a speaker's platform. The speaker was defending one of the greatest organizations in America from a scathing attack which questioned its sincerity of purpose.

In the midst of this defense the audience hissed. But in a moment the jeers were turned to ringing applause. For the speaker said:

"The only right you have to hiss me is because this is a free and untrammeled democracy. If the principles of some of these professors were to be adopted, you could not hiss me and I could not talk like this."

In those two sentences the speaker had removed the foundation from all the Islonism in the world except the Americanism of freedom of individual rights.

THE DOVE OF PEACE

There are no war clouds on the American horizon and unless some foolishness develops in our international affairs the United States will likely be able to hold aloof from the troubles of the old World. If some group of politicians should break away from the American way and begin to talk seriously about the United States mixing up in foreign troubles the answer of the public should be the repudiation of all such political demagogues, regardless of what party, or faction, they train with.

TAXATION WILL INCREASE

The expenses of the Government have raised the national debt to its highest peak. Under such conditions it is idle folly to expect any forthcoming Congress to receive taxation downward and "furnish business relief" in that way. Government business is like that of private business,—when expenses go up provision has to be made to get in enough money so that the Government will eventually get out of the red. There is no hope that budgets will be balanced for many years nor is there any hope that taxes will be lightened.

Because that is so, the Government has gone into "lending money" on a tremendous scale. That kind of bookkeeping makes the national debt look smaller.

HOW MANY CAPITOLS?

The primary elections have disclosed the fact that there have been many State political organizations set up to oppose the National Administration. State officials and voters in many of the States declare that they want to run their own affairs in their own way.

No one should forget the declaration of President Roosevelt at one time that the question of forty-eight State governments and one Federal Government managed to get along very well.

All over the country defenders of States' rights are multiplying in tremendous numbers. Their main objective is to maintain the status quo of the States—in the old-time way.

Of course, in the old days the Democratic party was the party of States' rights. President Roosevelt stands for dominant Federal control, to which the States must submit if his power survives .The Republicans were always an imitation of Federalists like Washington, up to very recent times.

Now the two old parties have switched fronts. It is possible that States' rights may develop into a real live political issue before the elections in November. That would at least make a clear division.

Employment Improves Slightly for The Month of June

A Net Decline of 6.0 Percent Was Registered For The Second Quarter of 1938

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 17—Employment in Mississippi improved slightly during June but a net decline of 6.0 percent was registered for the second quarter of 1938, according to indexes released today by the Unemployment Compensation Commission.

The second quarter decline was little greater than the rise in employment which occurred in the first three months of 1938, and end-of-month indexes based on last December showed Mississippi's condition virtually on a par with the close of last year. The indexes: December 100.0; January, 100.2; February 103.1; March, 105.9; April, 102.0; May, 98.8; June 99.5.

The Commission's indexes are taken from the monthly payroll reports of firms covered by the unemployment compensation law.

Major business groups showing declines in number of employees during the second quarter were: Manufacturing, which dropped 10.5 percent; hotels and eating places, 9.3 percent; wholesale trade, 7.8 percent; retail trade, 6.3 percent; transportation, 6.1 percent; and services and entertainment, 2.5 percent. Increases in employment were shown by construction, which rose 19.2 percent; financial institutions, 13.? percent; and public utilities, 3.3 percent.

Much of the decline was accounted for by seasonal shutdowns of fish packers, oil mills, fertilizer plants, and the naval stores industry.

During the month of June railroad employment registered an advance over May, the reports of 26 lines showing an increase from 8,024 to 8,322 employees and from $958,182.88 to $1,004,036.06 in wages. In road construction 58 identical employers showed an increase from 6,278 to 6,573 in employees and from $289,443.17 to $296,680.71 in wages. Other lines of business with outstanding improvements were bottling works, the ice industry, milk products manufacturers, vegetable packers, printers and publishers, clay products manufacturers, truck operators, cotton warehouses, insurance carrier, and beauty parlors.

Reports on 17 identical apparel manufacturers showed a decline in June from 6,966 to 6,323 workers and from $267,505.82 to $245,896.40 in wages. Employment declines were also shown by sawmills, lumber products manufacturers, fertilizer plants, the naval stores industry, wholesale trade, eating places, and logging contractors.

Daily Parades To Be Feature Of State Fair

Monday, October 10 Is "Industry Day," "Jackson Day" and "Press Day"

A daily parade featuring some phase of the exposition theme, "Know Your State", will be staged during the Mississippi Free State Fair to be held at Jackson October 10-15.

A gigantic procession, featuring floats and marching units representing every major Mississippi industry, will mark Monday, October 10th, which has been officially designated as "Industry Day," "Jackson Day," and "Press Day."

Members of the Mississippi Press Association, assembled in Jackson for their annual fall meeting, will be the honor guests of the State Fair and will participate in the parade.

Tuesday, October 11th, which will be "Agricultural Day," will see a parade of agricultural units, including floats representing cotton, dairying, poultry, livestock, and other phases of farm interests.

Wednesday, October 12th, will be "Health Day" with the various health units of the state taking part in a dramatization of that subject.

History and recreation will be the twin theme of a parade on Thursday with the biggest procession of all scheduled for Friday, "Education Day."

Saturday, October 15th, last day of the fair, will find veterans and fraternal organizations "on parade" in a procession which for sheer glamor will probably outclass all others.

The daily parades will be staged at 11 a. m. except on Friday. Due to the tremendous crowd anticipated for "Education Day" the parade on Friday may be held at 9 a. m. in order to clear the streets for visitors.

In keeping with the exposition theme, "Know Your State", every section will be invited to have a part in the daily processions.

NEW PROCESSING TO IMPROVE SORGHUM SYRUP

State College, Miss., Aug. 15—Important improvements recently developed by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Mississippi Experiment Station in the method of making sorghum syrup promise to revolutionize the processing of this important farm product.

The bulletin states that "during the time the seed is in the late milk to the soft—or medium—dough stage, is the best time to harvest sorghum for making syrup of good quality. Earlier than this, it is too green, and the resulting syrup has a green taste. It cut when the seeds are very hard, the starch content of the juice is higher, the juice may be difficult to clarify, and the flavor of the syrup is not so good, owing to the starch, which causes slow boiling and scorching."

Doug Corrigan On His Homeward Journey

Quiet, grinning Douglas "Wrong-way" Corrigan, who flew his $900 "old crate" from New York to Ireland to become the World's Number One Hero, takes life easy and calls for a cup of strong tea as the liner Manhattan carries him homeward. The riotous welcome given him in New York rivaled that of Colonel Lindbergh's triumphal return 11 years ago.

Dr. Felix J. Underwood Warns Against Danger of Wearing the Wrong Glasses

Alarmed at the large sale of spectacles by department stores and others who cannot accurately fit them, Dr. Felix J. Underwood, State Health Officer, issues a warning regarding the danger of wearing the wrong glasses.

"Sight is the most important of the five senses," Doctor Underwood states, "and the great need for conserving vision cannot be overestimated. As independent as blind people often become, they cannot exist without the aid of others. It is estimated that at least 80 per cent of our education and information are obtained through the eyes.

"Irreparable injury results to the eyes from improper fitting of glasses," the health officer declares. The present big sale of glasses by department stores and traveling spectacle peddlers who do not make a thorough examination of the eye structure thrives on ignorance and poverty and should be made illegal."

Doctor Underwood clarifies the difference between the often confused terms optician, optometrist, optician is one skilled in that opticina is one skilled in that branch of physical science which treats of the nature and properties of light," the health officer states. "The optician makes or deals in optical glasses and instruments. He cannot prescribe glasses. He can only grind and mount the lenses after eye disorders have been diagnosed.

"The oculist or ophthalmologist is a doctor of medicine who has specialized in the diagnosis and alleviation of eye diseases by the aid of medicine, surgery and optics. He dilates the pupils of the eyes and makes a thorough examination of the eye structure, noting whether defect or disease is present," Doctor Underwood explains.

"An optometrist is one who employs any means, other than the use of drugs, for the measurement of the powers of vision and the adaptation of lenses for the aid thereof.

"I cannot too strongly emphasize the dangers involved in consulting about vision those who are not professionally and legally qualified to render the best and safest service," Doctor Underwood states. "After all, our eyes are very sensitive organs and should not be abused. Everyone should know and practice good eye hygiene."

"Reading by improper and inadequate light is almost universal. A vast amount of education along this line is imperative."

Warning in conclusion that glasses should not be fitted by just anyonoe, Doctor Underwood declares that eyes are a precious possession deserving the best of care.

High State Officials Join In Inviting Carver To Mississippi

Many Other Speakers Will Appear On The Program October 17-21

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 10—Governor Hugh L. White, Mayor Walter Scott, Commissioner of Agriculture, J. C. Holton, and numerous other high State officials have followed the invitation emitted by the Mississippi Progress Committee to Dr. George W. Carver, to attend the celebration, "75 YEARS OF PROGRESS OF NEGROES IN MISSISSIPPI," which will be held in Jackson, October 17-21, 1938. Dr. Carver, who is at present confined to the hospital at Tuskeegee has answered all invitations and promised to be present if his health permits.

A long list of other speakers of National renown have been invited to appear on the program, the first to accept being President Wm. H. Bell, of Alcorn College, who will be the principal speaker on Education night.

Another feature of the celebration will be the State Band Contest, which will attract nearly two score College and High school musical groups to the celebration.

Interesting Letter From N. B. Saucier

Macon, Ga., Aug. 2, 1938

The Grenada Sentinel,
Grenada, Mississippi.

Dear Editor:

In keeping with my promise of a few days ago, I am sending you a few notes of my activities and whereabouts. If it is agreeable with you I will endeavor to send you a letter every week. I have many friends who read your paper and are probably interested in the work I am trying to do in the CCC here in Georgia. Should my letters get too lengthy you may cut them down to suit your space and any corrections you make will be appreciated.

One week ago this morning—Tuesday—I left Grenada en route to Atlanta. I was fortunate to have as traveling companion Miss Lilly Mae Holmes, a grand-daughter of Mrs. Ford, of Holcomb, who lives with her aunt, Mrs. Petty, in Decatur, Ga. We made the trip in about ten hours, reaching Atlanta at 6:30 o'clock eastern standard time. After a delicious supper with Mrs. Petty I reported to the CCC headquarters at Ft. McPherson. There I ran into two very close friends of former days in this work. Wednesday I got my physical examination and other necessary matters at the Headquarters and left for my base camp, SCS-6, Sparta, Ga. Sparta is about 115 miles east of Atlanta. I have the same group of camps I had when on duty last. I was very glad to get them back and the men and boys seemed very glad to have me back. I have seven camps this time, one additional camp to the sub-district I had before. This Macon camp is the new one. It is a National Monument Camp about a mile out of the city of Macon, Ga. Macon is a very nice city of over 60,000 population. Mercer college, a Baptist college, and Wesleyan College, a Methodist school and the oldest female college in the world are located in Macon. This is the third camp I have visited and I find a very fine spirit among the men.

Georgia is having lots of rain, too much the farmers think for their cotton. For what I have seen, Mississippi has Georgia beated for crops this year. The main truck crop in this section is pepper. There is a new canning plant not far from here. Last Thursday at Sparta I heard Georgia's Hughie P. Long, Gene Talmadge speak. He has been twice governor of Georgia and is now a candidate for the U S. Senate. I will refrain from speaking my opinion of Gene for I feel that his policies will never affect Mississippi and from what I have heard they will affect Georgia but little more.

For fear that this may not e published because of its length as well as substance, I must close with many good wishes to the friends of Grenada and adjoining counties.

Sincerely,
N. B. Saucier.

CAPITOL ACTIVITIES

by WALKER WOOD
SECRETARY OF STATE

The homestead exemption bill has passed both the House and the Senate. By accepting a conference report on August 10th, which excluded most city taxes, the house of representatives joined the senate in approving the homestead exemption measure. As the homestead exemption law stands Mississippi homes, whether in city or country, will be exempt on the first $5,000 of valuation of all state property taxes, and of all county and district taxes levied for maintenance purposes. Municipalities were left out of the bill, with the exception of exemption from maintenance school taxes. School tax levies in municipalities in Mississippi range from five to fifteen mills. In some municipalities the tax is as much as sixty per cent of the total tax. So it will be seen, that, after all, the municipalities fare well under the homestead exemption law passed. As soon as the governor signs the bill it will be a Mississippi law.

The next matters now that will have to be disposed before adjournment of the extraordinary session is that of providing additional revenue to offset that lost through the exemption law. Some of the means that will be brought before the legislative bodies to do this are: two-mill increase in advalorem on property other than homesteads; increase in cigarettes tax from three to four cents per package; restoration of 20 per cent tax on cigars; increase of tax on beer from one-half cent to 2 cents per bottle.

The extraordinary session of the Mississippi Legislature has been a busy one despite the fact that the Home Exemption Bill was the primary legislation for which the session was called. Up to August 11th, there had been a total of 317 bills introduced in the house and the senate. Of this number 58 House Bills; 20 Senate Bills, and 6 House and Senate Concurrent Resolutions, have been passed by both houses, and approved by the governor. Most of these measures are of a local and private nature, dealing with individuals, municipalities and county affairs.

A bill was introduced, at the regular 1938 session of the legislature, to discontinue the lime plant at Waynesboro. Representative U. S. Large, of Wayne County, succeeded in having the plant continued, therefore the Federal Government will pay $2.00 a ton to farmers using lime for cover crops, $1.50 an acre for planting such crops, and $1.50 per acre for plowing under. The lime will be furnished at a cost of $1.50 a ton at the plant. The G. M. & N. Railroad will transport this lime free along its routes. In an effort to aid the farmers of our State and cooperate with Congress and President Roosevelt in the effort to raise the economic level of our agricultural interest, Hon. G. F. Thames, Superintendent of the State Penitentiary, sent convicts July 29th to the plant at Waynesboro, and preparations under the supervision of Mr. Coyt McRea are being made to supply any amount of crushed lime to farmers who want it to place on land on which cover crops are to be planted.

The Mississippi Department of the American Legion will lead a National Legion Parade again in 1938. For the second time in succession this honor has come to Mississippi, the only state to ever receive such an honor. This time the Mississippi Legionnaires will parade at the head of the parade at Los Angeles, California. The Mississippi Legislature, at the extraordinary session, a few days ago, appropriated $25,000 for advertising Mississippi in the parade. It will be remembered that last year the Legionnaires from Mississippi advertised the state in a 4,000 mile trip overland, through many cities, to New York. This year the trip will cover more than 5,000 miles and go through states and cities not traversed by the caravan last year. The Henry Greaves Post of Jackson will bring back from the Los Angeles Convention a 50 foot Rosewood log, which they won in a membership contest with the Stockton, California Post.

Preliminary plans are being made for beginning the W. P. A. project, sponsored by the State Planning Commission, to provide airway markers at various places throughout the state. Preliminary plans call for painting approximately 500 markers on the roofs of structures throughout the state which will serve as a guide to air commerce. This undertaking is being done in cooperation with the Bureau of Air Commerce of the government. A W. P. A. project is in the process of being prepared by the State Planning Commission and will be submitted during this month to provide engineering to municipalities interested in determining sites for aviation fields and in solving engineering problems relative to developing these fields.

August 11th, all roads led to Water Valley, Mississippi, and thousands of Mississippi citizens spent the day in that historic north Mississippi city celebrating the annual Watermelon Festival, or Carnival. From a small beginning several years ago this carnival has grown each year until it is now one of the largest attended occasions in the state. The citizens of Yalobusha have long been noted for their gracious hospitality, but on no occasion do they hold more open house than at this Watermelon Carnival, at which there is both splendid entertainment, but an abundance of the red, juicy meat of watermelons to appease the appetite of the thousands of visitors, all freely and hospitably given. Attorney Gen. Greek L. Rice, Insurance Commissioner John Sharp Williams, 3d, Secretary of State Walker Wood, Supreme Court Judge J. G. McGowan, Supreme Court Clerk Tom Q. Ellis and other State officials were in attendance.

Emphasizing the growing importance of the truck crop industry in the state, the Mississippi Advertising Commission last week released to the leading feature picture syndicates and the newspapers on its resort schedule a group of photographs centered around the watermelon growing industry. The photographs, made by the Advertising Commission at Water Valley, are insured of greater timeliness through their having as a theme the Annual Watermelon Carnival held at Water Valley. The Commission's feature story released to all Mississippi newspapers in mid-September will also deal with truck crops and their importance to farmers of the state.

The growth of farm boys' and girls' club work under the Mississippi extension department has been rapid in Mississippi. There are now 2508 local 4-H clubs with an enrollment of 41,395 girls and 25,837 boys, or a total of 67,832 club members. These members conducted demonstrations in growing improved crops, raising better livestock, improving their homes, tending gardens, raising poultry, and learning the art of cooking, canning and sewing. This great group of farm boys and girls, who carry out a practical educational, economic, social and recreational program, comprise the state's largest student body. These enterprising farm youngsters are learning the best in rural life and through productive enterprises are paying their way while they are doing it. They will be the well-trained farmers of tomorrow who will keep Mississippi at the forefront agriculturally.

Thomas D. Burleigh, Associate Biologist, United States Bureau of Biological survey, is the author of an article on "The relation of birds to the establishment of longleaf pine seedlings in Southern Mississippi I.t is a very interesting and instructive article dealing with the difficult problems of securing satisfactory natural reproduction of long-leaf pine on the cut-over lands in South Mississippi. It shows the progress that has been made in the last few years to replace the vanishing long-leaf pine of that section, and why progress has not been more rapid. Mr. Burleigh's recommendation is that direct seeding should not be undertaken during years when seed is produced in abundance. Maximum natural survival can apparently be obtained when the cone crop is light and birds are relatively scarce. Best results from direct seeding can also be expected during such years.

Charles E. Brumfield, Executive secretary of the Board of Trustees of State Eleemosynary Institutions, states that at the Mississippi State Hospital at Whitfield, East Mississippi State Hospital at Meridian, Ellisville State School and Mississippi Industrial Institute and Training School at Columbia, more than 15,000 gallons of fruits and vegetables have been canned for winter use, and that during the next two months these institutions are expecting to can about 10,000 gallons more. The dairy herds at the Mississippi State Hospital, Whitfield, and East Mississippi State Hospital, Meridian, are sufficient to furnish an adequate supply of milk, and East Mississippi State Hospital has more than 11,000 chickens at this time to furnish eggs for the patients in those institutions.

Dr. W. F. Bond, director of state department of public welfare, states that the Federal Social Security Board was three years old the fifteenth day of this month. A nation-wide celebration was carried out in recognition for the inauguration of this far-reaching program. Dr. Bond says that all of those who felt that help to the needy aged, the needy blind, the crippled, the sick, neglected children, the handicapped, and the unemployed is a great thing, gladly joined in the celebration.

When you drink Beer in a tavern . . . choose your tavern

WHEN YOU restrict your patronage to legal, respectable retail outlets, you not only encourage those better outlets but you've made a start toward driving out the bad spots in your community.

And that is exactly the aim of the great body of honest retailers of beer who, along with the brewers, recognize that Beer's only problem is to remove the anti-social conditions that sometimes surround its sale.

Existing laws can curb these evils. Help us by demanding their strict enforcement! Sales to minors, or after legal hours . . . or use of a beer license as a screen, for selling illicit liquor or for operating an illicit resort . . . all these are violations of the law and should be stopped. Public opinion, once aroused, can see that such practices are stopped!

MISSISSIPPI FARM NEWS

Mississippi farmers are making basic changes and long needed improvements on their farms. According to a summary report just completed by T. M. Patterson, administrative officer in charge, AAA, Jackson, 203,340 farmers cooperated in the AAA farm program during the past year.

These farmers diverted 755,432 acres from cotton and planted 2,281,736 acres in soil conserving crops. They received $7,406,756 for diverting acreage from cotton $1,726,445 for carrying out soil-building practices. Benefit payments totaled $9,202,401.

In carrying out soil-building practices for which they received payment cooperating producers:

Planted 16,504 acres in alfalfa.

Seeded 717,776 acres to lespedeza, hairy vetch, Austrian winter peas, and bur clover.

Planted and plowed under 241,685 acres of summer legumes other than lespedeza.

Plowed under 432,138 acres of winter legumes.

Plowed under 2,954 acres of green manure crops, including rye, oats, barley, and Italian rye grass.

Turned under 1,266 acres of annual grasses with one or more legumes, as green manure following truck or vegetable crops and in orchards.

Plowed under 942 acres of sorghum and Sudan grass.

Established 30,388 acres of new permanent pasture of approved grasses and legumes.

Planted 866 acres of forest trees.

Applied 828,138 pounds of ground limestone, or its equivalent, on soil-conserving crops and pastures.

Applied 249,722 pounds of superphosphate on soil-conserving crops and pastures.

Applied 5,712,428 pounds of basic slag on soil-conserving crops and pastures.

Applied 43,958 pounds of Manganese sulphate on soil-conserving crops.

Built 44,180,696 feet of terraces.

Established contours on 2,175 acres of pasture land.

Built 158,974 feet of ridges on pasture land.

The above figures reveal the remarkable progress Mississippi farmers are making in conserving and improving soil fertility. The results are being reflected in increasing yields of practically all field crops. The increase in per acre yields of cotton in Mississippi during the past 5 years is without a parallel in the production of a major farm crop in the United States.

In addition to these gains, Mississippi farmers have largely increased the acreage planted to cowpeas and soybeans for hay and increased acreage of cowpeas and soybeans interplanted in corn.

Good Cotton Depends On Farmer, Ginner

The farmer and the ginner both share in the responsibility of carefully handling cotton for improved quality that will be more attractive to both domestic and foreign buyers, says County Agent J. L. Cooley.

Picking the cotton clean and dry and preventing the mixing of improved varieties with other varieties is the first responsibility of the grower, the county agent said. The grower who picks and hauls wet cotton to the gin and expects it to come out in first-class condition is only losing money for himself.

If the cotton has to be picked wet it should be spread out to dry or piled loosely in sheds to dry out for several days before it is taken to the gin.

When the cotton reaches the gin it is the responsibility of the ginner to see that the best quality lint possible comes from the ginning of the farmer's cotton. Machinery in good condition, and drying and cleaning equipment will aid him in doing this, according to the extension advisers.

The improved cleaning and drying machinery is the result of several years of study by the United States Department of Agriculture. It has been demonstrated that drying enhances the bale value of short staple cotton by about 70 cents, and up to $2.50 a bale for long staple.

Modern equipment will provide higher grade lint from either damp or moderately trashy cotton, but no machinery is available which can dry extremely wet cotton or remove enough of the foreign matter to give lint equal in quality to that ginned from dry, clean-picked cotton.

Another Record In Planting Of Winter Legumes Beginning

Increased Yields From Plowed Under Winter Cover Crops Cause Green Blanket Fast Covering State

Millions of pounds of seeds of winter legumes for planting within the nxet few weeks are now being assembled in warehouses and distributed to farmers in anticipation of another record-breaking acreage of these plants which prevent soil erosion and build soil fertility.

Though these fall planted crops have been recognized for years as essential to permanent soil fertility in the South, it is only during a comparatively recent period that substantial headway has been made in a state-wide mass-scale planting program. Ten years or so ago the planting of 100,000 pounds of seed of winter legumes in a single season was marked as indicative of signal progress.

In 1934, five million pounds of seeds of Austrian peas, vetch, bur clover, and other winter legumes were planted in the state. In 1935 the total was nine million pounds, and in 1936, fourteen million pounds. Last fall this regular habit of breaking all past planting records was continued when farmers utilized 18,500,000 pounds of seeds of winter legumes. It is anticipated that uniformly successful results following the record planting of last year will be followed by another record breaking planting this fall.

There is no secret about the cause of this phenominal increase in plantings of winter legumes. The biggest crop of these soil building plants in the history of the state was turned under just before planting time this spring. Customary commercial crops now occupying the land thus built up show greatly increased yields almost without exception.

Experimental data indicates that within a year or two, yields of succeeding crops may be doubled by the plowing under of winter legumes; and practical farmers all over Mississippi have proved to their own satisfaction that quarter-of-a-bale cotton land can be built up to bale-to-the-acre land, and that 15-bushel corn land can be built into 40-bushel per acre corn land.

"Winter legumes give to farmers in all sections of Mississippi the means of developing rich land," commented J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture. "They fit into our modern farming program and are needed on practically every farm in the state. See your county agent for full information, because planting time is not far ahead."

HAY AND ROUGHAGE TO PLAY IMPORTANT PART

State College, Miss., Aug. 17.—An abundance of quality hay and other roughages will play an important part in economical livestock feeding during the coming winter, according to L. A. Higgins, extension dairy specialist, who says that such feeds may be used by farmers to replace much of the higher priced concentrate feeds.

The extension dairy leader calls attention to the hay schools which will be conducted by the state Extension Service and experiment station workers at West Point, August 18-19; Holly Springs, 23-24; Stoneville, 25-26; Poplarville, 30-31.

Emphasizing that the roughage should be of "first grade quality", Higgins says "hay should be cut before it is over-matured, properly cured and stored without the loss of leaves, and while it retains much of its original green color. Hays of such quality are more palatable, the animals eat more and waste less, and the feeding value is much higher than hays which are over-matured when cut and over-exposed while being cured."

"Some authorities," Higgins says, "have estimated that the value of 75 percent of the state's hay crop is reduced 50 percent or more in feeding value by delaying cutting until after the crop is over-matured and then leaving it in the windows until it is over-exposed."

Higgins urges producers to harvest their hay "at the right time and in the best condition possible."

COTTON GINS AND DRIERS

At least 100 more cotton gins have added driers this year, bringing the total of gins so equipped to about 650 out of 12,700 in the country, says J. W. Willis, cotton specialist of the Mississippi Extension Service. He quotes from a report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture ginning laboratory at Stoneville, Miss.

Unfavorable weather during last year's harvesting season lowered the grade of much of the record 1937 crop. Wet weather again this year would increase the responsibilities of both growers and ginners in producing lint with the qualities most in demand by domestic and foreign mills, says Willis. Even modern driers, cleaners, and extractors have their limitations. Ginners cannot fully offset failure to pick and handle cotton so as to deliver it to the gin dry and free of leaves and other trash.

Some cotton merchants and spinners have complained of over-dried or "baked" staple. Willis points out that drying temperatures ordinarily should range from 150 to 160 degrees Fahrenheit, except for very wet cotton when they may go up to—but not over—200 degrees. These temperatures do not over-dry or "bake" the cotton.

"Mechanical drying of cotton at gins is relatively new and it is one of the several developments from experimental ginning work at Stoneville laboratory since 1930. The drying process and some types of drying equipment now in commercial use were developed at the laboratory under the direction of Charles A. Bennett of the Bureau of Agricultural Engineering and Francis L. Gerdes of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Mississippi Lime Available For All Fall Cover Crops

In an effort to aid Mississippi farmers, Superintendent J. F. Thames of the State Penitentiary has sent crews of convicts to the lime plant at Waynesboro, and preparations are being made to supply crushed lime in any amount to farmers who want it as fertilezer on land to be planted in cover crops.

Coyt McRae has been placed in charge of the project.

The Federal government has offered $2.00 per ton to farmers using lime for cover crops, $1.50 an acre for planting such crops, and $1.50 per acre for plowing under.

The lime will be furnished at a cost of $1.00 per ton at the plant, and the G. M. & N. Railroad will transport it free to points along its route.

Mississippi farmers desiring to participate in the dstribution are being notified to place their orders for fall delivery at once with Mr. McRae.

FRESHENING THE PILLOWS

Pillows that have been in constant use throughout the year may need freshening. Pillows can be washed satisfactorily by two methods. The first is without removing the feathers. Scrub the pillow in a weak washing soda solution, using a good suds. Repeat in a second suds if necessary. Rinse in lukewarm water, changing it two or three times. Squeeze out as much water as possible. Then dry the pillows on a sheet in a warm place, preferably in the sun. Beat the pillows from time to time during the drying.

A second and more satisfactory way is to transfer the feathers to a muslin bag two or three times the size of the ticking, by sewing the edges of the openings of the ticking and the bag together and shaking the feathers from one to the other. Wash and dry the bag of feathers in the same way that a whole pillow would be washed and dried. After washing the ticking separately, apply a very stiff starch mixture to the inside with a sponge to close the pores of the material and prevent feathers from working through. When thoroughly dry, refill the ticking in the same way it was emptied.

Information on washing other household textile articles is given in Farmers' Bulletin 1497-F, "Methods and Equipment for Home Laundering," which can be obtained free from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., while the supply lasts.

Weekly News Letter

President Roosevelt says very positively that the South is the nation's economic problem number one. By this, he means, of course, that the income of the average worker is smaller than it should be, not only for our own good but for the welfare of the nation as a whole. The President, therefore, has given himself the task of trying to solve this problem.

The first step, as has been announced, will be to increase the allotment of WPA funds to this section. We of the South should try to use this money in such a way that the results will be helpful and permanent.

TO PREVENT DECAY IN FRAME HOUSES

A good frame house that is dry and well built is in practically no danger from decay. This information comes from the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., wood research organization of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

To prevent decay in a frame house, the Forest Laboratory suggests that the householder observe half a dozen precautions:

Build the house on a site that is well drained.

Buy well seasoned lumber from a yard that does not tolerate rot in foundations and lumber piles.

Do not use lumber that is starting to decay.

Do not allow the lumber to lie on the ground after delivery on the job, and do not let untreated lumber come in contact with the soil or with foundations or walls likely to be damp.

Unseasoned wood should not be embedded in concrete or masonry without leaving ventilation around the ends of the timbers.

Unless wood flooring has been chemically treated, never lay it directly on the soil or on concrete in contact with the soil. Provide plenty of ventilation so that free circulation of air around the wood will keep it dry.

Helps For Home Builders

For those who are thinking of building or moderninzing a home the U. S. Department of Agriculture has a number of helpful publications. Some of them suggest economical house plans, practical materials, mistakes to be avoided, others tell how to mix concrete, build a chimney, reroof the house, and so on. The Department's Bureau of Agricultural Engineering has prepared a list of these bulletins and it also suggests other reliable sources of information. This list will be sent to anyone on request.

Among the titles are "Planning the Farmstead" and "Beautifying the Farmstead," both which deal with the whole area covered by the farm and home buildings. There are also a number of bulletins about construction, such as "Farmhouse Plans," "Modernizing Farm Houses," "Construction of Chimneys and Fireplaces," "Making Cellars Dry," "The Use of Logs and Poles in Farm Construction," "Adobe or Sun-Dried Brick for Farm Buildings," "Rat-Proofing Buildings and Premises," "Roof Coverings and Their Repair," "Selection of Lumber," "Injury to Buildings by Termites," and several others.

Sewerage and plumbing problems and the farmstead water supply are discussed in four publications; using concrete on the farm, and painting farm buildings are subjects of other bulletins. Very valuable are three that describe safeguards against fire and two on heating systems. Of special interest to the housewife are "Floors and Floor Coverings," "Window Curtaining," and "Convenient Kitchens."

Care Of Wood Floors

Wood floors with fine finishes, such as shellac, varnish, or floor seal, combined with wax, should never be scrubbed with water. Sweeping or dry mopping should be all that is necessary.

To make a good dry floor mop, the Forest Products Laboratory of the U. S. Department of Agriculture recommends barely dampening a soft cotton mop with a mixture consisting of three parts of kerosene and one part of paraffin oil. When the mop becomes dirty, it should be washed in hot soap and water, dried, and again dampened with the mixture of kerosene and paraffin oil.

Exceptional patches of dirt that cannot be removed in this way may be taken off by rubbing the area lightly with fine steel wool moistened with turpentine. Where the finish is one of the new floor seals, badly soiled spots, such as gray spots where water has stood on the floor for a time, can be sanded by hand, patched with seal and buffed with a pad of steel wool. Then, if the rest of the floor is waxed, they should be waxed.

Varnish finish, if kept in good condition, offers protection against water scars; but if it does become mired it is not so easily repaired. The wood experts of the Forest Products Laboratory recommend renewing a wax finish every 4 to 6 months, depending on the amount of wear on the floor.

ed and early visits that the premature termination of pregnancies, the stillbirths, and many diseases and deaths of the newborn can be reduced.

"We are living in an era of preventative medicine where we strive to keep people well rather than wait until they become sick before treating them. Such prevention, of course, can not be obtained unless the individual consults her physician, places herself in his hands, and follows his instructions to the letter," Doctor Cottrell says.

"When the women of America realize the value of the need for maternity care, they will demand it. Then and only then will they get it. When its advantages are clearly understood, a demand for good maternity care will be created and the needless risk of childbirth will be eliminated."

day."

To my mind Miss Sallie's simple elegance, her plain white attire, teeth and complexion to correspond, her full clear enunciations and manner all combined, made the picture perfect, without a line or dot, in excess. But there were other sweet girls in that school, some of whom escaped the scurge of 1878, who perhaps may read this adieu. There was a Miss Mamie Rayburn, Grace Cowles, Clanche Mullin and others.

And there were Will, Whyte and Don Whitaker, Jimmie Mitchell, Henry and John Stokes, Eugene and Walter Ingram, Ben Ayers and Ben Harrison, Louis and Rowland Jones.

This review would be sadly deficient if I failed to mention the chief theme of public interest in that decade from 1865 to 1875, while the Carpet Baggers were in Grenada and all over the vanquished South, and so were the United States troops. Then came the KKK.

The important personages of Grenada of that date were Gen. Watlhall, Capt. Wm. R. Barksdale, L. French, Judge Gray and many others, while Price Kelly and Lincoln were the distinguished Carpet Baggers. While the quieter business men were Col. M. K. Mister, N. C. Snider, Lake Bros. Peacock & Powell, R. Mullin, Robt. Williams, J. E. Hughes, R. Doak, J. M. Knox, W. N. Pass, Dr. W. B. May, Dr. Hughes, Dr. Hall, Judge Wilkins, Wm. Below and many others.

I cannot dwell and converse altogether with the past and elements ordained from the foundation of the world. Neither can I like many other old men who have had valuable experience, in life and want to bequeath it to others in the form of advice, but I want to say to the grandsons of my old schoolmates, that a boy makes a very great mistake if he comes to maturity without having an avocation for life, and be sure to get something you "love" to do., otherwise you might as well marry a woman you don't love, as to marry a trade you don't love. I made that mistake in avocation myself and lost ten years of my life thereby. I was raised on a farm and drifted into plantation stores before learning that I was a mechanic. Then I went into a machine shop at $2.50 per week, after holding some good positions as plantation store manager.

After contributing so much towards "making the world safe for Democracy," paying people "not to raise hogs," and a long series of depressions, I have succeeded in establishing a business of my own, or rather the foundation for one, but I must call in a younger man to complete and enjoy it.

I have never done any very smart thing, but I have abstained from the habit of using whiskey and tobacco, and I am very well satisfied with the results, now in my 80th year, in good health and enjoy my food, sleep and work.

What of Eternity? This is eternity in my opinion. No I cannot prove it, neither can you disprove it. I realize that "Shrouds have no pockets," but I am risking all on the conviction that all we acquire in this world worth having, we take it with us when we go, and bring it back, AT ONCE, when we come again, no cold storage plants for God's best models.

Former Grenada Boy Goes To Arkansas Legislature

Elected In First Primary Over Two Strong Opponents

In the recent Democratic primary election in Arkansas, Julian James, former Grenada county boy, received 134 more votes than the total of his two opponents, thereby assuring him a seat in the Arkansas Legislature. His term will begin next January.

This is quite an honor for Julian as he had lived in Jonesboro only four years while his two opponents had made their home there for the past twenty years.

He will represent Craighead county.

Small Consumer Given Benefit Of Lower Electric Rate

Revision Is In Keeping With Assurance Given City Officials By The Company

Following a discussion between city officials and the Mississippi Power & Light Company, a revision in residential electric rate principally affecting the small user will then be placed in effect applicable on service bills of the company rendered on and after August 29.

This revision is in keeping with the assurance given city officals by the company that a downward revision would be made as soon as possible in electric rates for the small consumer or the family which makes only moderate use of service.

The new rates are a revision of the schedule that has been applied in the territory of the company with the present 6-cent top step in the rate revised to 4½-cents. This revision in the initial step of the residential electric rate will make available to small consumers additional service without additional cost and thereby enable them to enjoy extra service advantages.

A similar revision in rates affecting small consumers of electric service will be in effect throughout the entire territory served by Mississippi Power and Light Company. This downward revision will mean a saving to small users of electric service of $165,000.00 annually and will be effective on all service bills rendered on and after August 29.

In discussing its revision to rates, Rex I. Brown, President of the Mississippi Power & Light Company said that employees of his company would call upon every residential customer within the immediate future to explain the benefits of the new rate and to assist the customer in applying the additional service now available, without additional cost, to the customer's best advantage.

Mr. Brown also stated, "It is the desire of our company to make constructive downward revisions in electric rates as rapidly as possible but we can take such steps only when they are consistent with the maintenance of the company's financial stability and the protection of its ability to furnish dependable service to all of its customers."

In this connection, Mr. Brown added ,"A downward revision in electric rates always directs attention to the ever-increasing tax burdens of the company which are today 69% greater than in 1933. Most of this increase has been other than municipal. Operating expenses have also been greatly increased during the same five-year period, having jumped 46%."

"Another important factor", stated Mr. Brown, "is the constant extension of facilities necessary on the part of the company to keep in step with the growth of all the cities, towns and communities served by the company."

"Nevertheless", continued Mr. Brown, "after careful consideration the company has in a spirit of cooperation with city officials made this new revision. This action was taken with the hope that the loss in revenue to the company may be reduced, at least in part, by an improvement in business conditions generally and by the use of additional service now available to customers under the revised rate, at no additional cost to them."

Supply of Bulletins Sent To Co. Supts

(By J. S. Vandiver)

The State Board of Education is sending this week to the county superintendents of education a supply of bulletins on the rules of the roads. This bill was passed in the 1938 session of the Legislature, and the provisions of the bill are to be taught in the eighth grade of all the public schools of the state. During the first year, 1938-39, it shall be taught in the eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades of all the schools.

It is our suggestion that teachers work out a program so that the provisions of this act may be taught in the grades designated above. This may be done by either teaching it in connection with some other course or in a special assembly period with all the pupils who are required to take the course together in one group. We feel that a course of this kind is very important and worth while and realize that the good which may be accomplished from it depends to a very great degree on the interest of the teachers in presenting the course. We also suggest that you invite a member of the highway patrol to visit your school and address all students.

We hope that every superintendent and teacher in the state will give proper emphasis to this course which should result in lessening materially in the reduction of highway accidents and in making the people "sawety conscious."

Important Notice

In order to vote in the Democratic primary next Tuesday, August 23 you must have in possession your poll tax receipts for the two preceding years and must have paid this tax on or before February of each year.

For example, you must have paid one poll tax on or before February 1, 1937 and the other poll tax on or before February 1, 1938, and you must have both of the receipts in your possession when you apply to vote.

If you have paid this tax as required by law and have lost your receipts you can obtain duplicates from the Circuit Clerk.
